That Tired Feeling

The lassitude, languor and debility peculiar to this season are wholly overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, invigorates the nervous system, and imparts new life and energy to all the functions of the body.

"I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for billiousness and all impurities of the blood. Last spring I was much benefited by it."—Mrs J. W. Clement, Franklin, N. H.

A lady tells us "the first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good; her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." A second bottle effected a cure.

"The beneficial effects from Hood's Sarsaparilla have been more speedy than from any other preparation."—E. G. Woodman, Wilton, N. H.

We ask special attention to the fact that testimonials published by us are from influential persons who are now living and enjoying the health which the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla has given them.

Capt. J. P. Thompson, of Lowell, Registrar of Deeds for Middlesex County, Northern District, says: "I have never found anything that hit my wants as Hood's Sarsaparilla; it purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite and makes me over."

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla in my family for scrofulous humor with wonderful success."—C. C. Pickering (Coburn Shuttle Co.), Lowell, Mass.

PURIFY YOUR BLOOD

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of medicine, hence this is the time to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify your blood and fortify your system against the debilitating effects of Spring weather. It sharpens the appetite, tones the stomach, invigorates the aged, and imparts new life and energy to all. "My breakfast tasted good this morning for the first time in several months; have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla only three days."

DYSPEPSIA does not get well of itself. If you have tried everything without benefit, don't give up, but try Hood's Sarsaparilla. No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like it.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me of dyspepsia, indigestion and debility. I can eat anything without that awful distress, have a tremendous appetite.—Park Patten, Gardiner, Me.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has met success at home never accorded to any other proprietary medicine. It has successfully combated the strongest competition, and, by its superior merit, to-day commands the largest sale and greatest confidence wherever it has been introduced. An Alderman says: "Hood's is the strongest Sarsaparilla I ever saw."

"I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier in the market."—L. J. Clement, of the firm of J. W. & L. J. Clement, Warner, N. H.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the most approved alterative, tonic and blood purifying remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure, when in the power of medicine, dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, spring debility, kidney complaints, scrofula, salt rheum and all disease arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It is nature's great health restorer, and is not equaled by any other medicine. Try it.

OUR POLICY

It is not now, nor has it ever been, the policy of the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla to mislead the public in any way regarding the curative power of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In advertising, we shall state facts honestly, candidly, and allow the people to judge the claims Hood's Sarsaparilla has upon their confidence and patronage. Thousands have found good health and relief from terrible suffering, through the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, when every other means failed.

FATHER KEMP

Originator of the Old Folks' Concerts, and proprietor of the popular shoe store, 1090 Washington street, Boston, writes: "Fifteen years ago I had to give up work. Dangerous symptoms, with constant roaring in the head, abscesses forming with fearful suffering till they would break, my legs from ankle to knee would swell and turn black. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla. Result: To-day am a well man, no pains or ails, and can do as much work as forty years ago."

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

"I have suffered from Kidney Complaint and Billousness fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me." Jonathan J. Coburn, Dracut, Mass.

Sold by druggists. One dollar; six for five dollars. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Try it.

THE GRANT WATER FILTER,

For Houses, Offices, Hotels, Public Buildings, Manufactories, and for Boilers.

Awarded the Highest Prize by the Massachusetts Charitable Mechanic's Association, as the Best, by the Judges on Filters.

This award was not satisfactory to the Crocker Filter Co.; they protested against the decision of the judges, and asked for a hearing before the Executive Committee, which was granted, and after a full review at two sessions of the Committee, it was unanimously voted to sustain the decision made by the judges, giving the Grant Filter the highest award.

The Executive Committee is composed of the following named gentlemen:—

Charles W. Slack. Nathaniel J. Bradlee. Joseph L. Bates. Thomas Leavitt. Frederick W. Lincoln. James C. Tucker. Henry A. Turner. Leonard F. Creesy. Jonas Fitch. Joseph F. Paul. Lemuel M. Ham.

That Tired Feeling

The lassitude, languor and debility peculiar to this season are wholly overcome by taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. It purifies, vitalizes and enriches the blood, invigorates the nervous system, and imparts new life and energy to all the functions of the body.

"I cheerfully recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for biliousness and all impurities of the blood. Last spring I was much benefited by it."—Mrs J. W. Clement, Franklin, N. H.

A lady tells us "the first bottle has done my daughter a great deal of good; her food does not distress her now, nor does she suffer from that extreme tired feeling which she did before taking Hood's Sarsaparilla." A second bottle effected a cure.

"The beneficial effects from Hood's Sarsaparilla have been more speedy than from any other preparation."—E. G. Woodman, Wilton, N. H.

We ask special attention to the fact that testimonials published by us are from influential persons who are now living and enjoying the health which the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla has given them.

Capt. J. P. Thompson, of Lowell, Registrar of Deeds for Middlesex County, Northern District, says: "I have never found anything that hit my wants as Hood's Sarsaparilla; it purifies my blood, sharpens my appetite and makes me over."

"I have used Hood's Sarsaparilla in my family for scrofulous humor with wonderful success."—C. C. Pickering (Coburn Shuttle Co.), Lowell, Mass.

PURIFY YOUR BLOOD

At no other season is the system so susceptible to the beneficial effects of medicine, hence this is the time to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to purify your blood and fortify your system against the debilitating effects of Spring weather. It sharpens the appetite, tones the stomach, invigorates the aged, and imparts new life and energy to all. "My breakfast tasted good this morning for the first time in several months; have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla only three days."

DYSPEPSIA does not get well of itself. If you have tried everything without benefit, don't give up, but try Hood's Sarsaparilla. No other Sarsaparilla has such a sharpening effect upon the appetite. No other preparation tones and strengthens the digestive organs like it.

"Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me of dyspepsia, indigestion and debility. I can eat anything without that awful distress, have a tremendous appetite.—Park Patten, Gardiner, Me.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Has met success at home never accorded to any other proprietary medicine. It has successfully combated the strongest competition, and, by its superior merit, to-day commands the largest sale and greatest confidence wherever it has been introduced. An Alderman says: "Hood's is the strongest Sarsaparilla I ever saw."

"I believe Hood's Sarsaparilla to be the best blood purifier in the market."—L. J. Clement, of the firm of J. W. & L. J. Clement, Warner, N. H.

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

Combines, in a proportion peculiar to itself, the active medicinal properties of the most approved alterative, tonic and blood purifying remedies of the vegetable kingdom. It will positively cure, when in the power of medicine, dyspepsia, headache, biliousness, spring debility, kidney complaints, scrofula, salt rheum and all disease arising from an impure state or low condition of the blood. It is nature's great health restorer, and is not equaled by any other medicine. Try it.

OUR POLICY

It is not now, nor has it ever been, the policy of the proprietors of Hood's Sarsaparilla to mislead the public in any way regarding the curative power of Hood's Sarsaparilla. In advertising, we shall state facts honestly, candidly, and allow the people to judge the claims Hood's Sarsaparilla has upon their confidence and patronage. Thousands have found good health and relief from terrible suffering, through the use of Hood's Sarsaparilla, when every other means failed.

FATHER KEMP

Originator of the Old Folks' Concerts, and proprietor of the popular shoe store, 1090 Washington street, Boston, writes: "Fifteen years ago I had to give up work. Dangerous symptoms, with constant roaring in the head, abscesses forming with fearful suffering till they would break. my legs from ankle to knee would swell and turn black. I used Hood's Sarsaparilla. Result: To-day am a well man, no pains or ails, and can do as much work as forty years ago."

HOOD'S SARSAPARILLA

"I have suffered from Kidney Complaint and Biliousness fifteen years. Hood's Sarsaparilla cured me." Jonathan J. Coburn, Dracut, Mass.

Sold by druggists. One dollar; six for five dollars. Prepared only by C. I. HOOD & Co., Apothecaries, Lowell, Mass. Try it.

Weights and Measures.

The undersigned has been appointed Sealer of Weights and Measures for the City of Bangor, and will attend to the duties of said office at No. 5 State street, every secular day.

All persons having Scales, Beams, Weights, Steelyards, Wet or dry Measure, Yard Sticks, or any other apparatus for weighing or measuring, are notified to bring them to the undersigned, that they may be proved and sealed according to law.

This service can be performed with greater facility and at less expense if parties interested will comply with the law and bring their apparatus to the Sealer.

New levers furnished for platform scales, making them nearly as good as new.

WILL BE HELD IN

CITY HALL, PORTLAND,

Tuesday, June 13, 1882,

At 11 o'clock A. M.

for the purpose of nominating a candidate for Governor and four candidates for Representatives in Congress to be supported at the September election and to transact any other business that may properly come before it.

The basis of representation will be as follows Each city, town and plantation will be entitled to one delegate, and for each seventy five votes cast for the Republican candidate for Governor in 1880, an additional delegate, and for a fraction of forty votes in excess of seventy five votes one additional delegate.

The State Committee will be in session in the Reception Room of the City Hall at nine o clock on the morning of the Convention for the purpose of receiving the credentials of delegates.

All citizens of Maine, whatever may have heretofore been their party affiliations, who believe in the purity of the ballot and honesty in its count, in popular government unobstructed by Executive usurpations in an independent and honest Judiciary whose Judges shall not be exposed to the assaults of partisan hatred and revenge in a safe and sound currency for the people, in a reasonable encouragement and development of our industries, and protection of our Laborers against the cheap labor of Europe by wise and judicious laws in efficient measures for the encouragement of American shipping and ship-building in popular education, in temperance, in an economical, just and efficient administration of public affairs are cordially invited to unite with the Republicans of the State in selecting delegates to this Convention

SHALL FRAUD RULE?

[From the New York Tribune]

Unlike most parliamentary contests the struggle which the Democrats have commenced in the House has real and vital meaning It involves the very essence of representative government The House has no business to enact laws of any kind if it is incapable of reaching a decision whether its seats are lawfully and honestly filled It is reported by the proper committee that certain members do not represent the people A minority in effect confesses that the charge is true, because it does not dare to permit any argument or vote upon the questions raised Of necessity the parliamentary struggle immediately touches the case of only one member but it was resolved in the caucus of the minority that any consideration of any of the cases of contest should, if possible, be prevented, and every Democrat present, with one exception, has contemptuously disregarded his oath of office in order to make the decree of the caucus effective Indeed it has been explained that some Northern men were reluctant to dishonor themselves by denying justice in cases so flagrant, and particularly reluctant to resort to revolutionary measures for the defeat of claimants who were rightfully and legally elected but that notice was served upon them by Democrats of the South that the rifle clubs the tissue ballots and the forged returns should cease to be used hereafter to secure the success of any Democratic tickets Congressional or electoral, unless the men already chosen by such means were upheld and defended by Northern Democrats

This statement discloses the real meaning of the contest Northern Democrats know that their party would never get votes enough in Congress or in a Presidential election, to be even a respectable minority if frauds were stopped They know that the conscienceless seekers for plunder who do much of the work of the party would instantly abandon it if it were to have hereafter only those chances of success which honest elections at the South would leave it In short the party must cease to exist unless it can be kept alive by frauds so gross and outrageous that Democrats do not dare to discuss or vote upon them Knowing this, members who wish to be considered gentlemen and men of honor by Northern constituencies nevertheless vote to rob the people in Southern districts of their dearest rights Party necessity is their sole excuse They must do so or the party would be destroyed

The declarations of Republicans from the South show that the Southern Democrats are not mistaken in their predictions These Republicans say, and abundant evidence proves, that such frauds as are necessary to defeat the will of the people at the South can be perpetrated with success only where there is virtually no substantial resistance by white citizens, and where the Democrats control all the offices Wherever these infamous outrages are resisted firmly, by even a small minority of Democrats, honest elections follow, as in Virginia and the Democratic party is overwhelmed

A sufficient minority will be found to resist in every Southern State, and to secure honest elections, as soon as it is known that Congress is both willing and able to uphold justice and rebuke fraud Hence the Bourbon Democrats of the South are unquestionably telling the truth when they say that the party cannot count upon any success whatever at the South unless it upholds and defends the outrages already committed Let it be known that frauds can no longer rob the people of representation, and half a million of voters, white and black, who thought it utterly useless in 1880 to cast votes that would never be counted or returned, will insist upon their rights Followers of Mahone will be found in every Southern State who will stake all their political hopes upon success in defeating fraud The great conspiracy which has robbed the people so long will break up and its overthrow will be the destruction of the Democratic party.

Hereafter Northern constituencies will be asked to deal with Democratic representatives who are knowingly defending frauds so infamous that they dare not discuss them Members who resort to revolutionary measures and block the wheels of Government in order to rob the people of representation, will be called upon to tell Northern constituencies why they should be represented by thieves.

When ground was broken Tuesday for the new Christian church in Washington, to be erected as a memorial of President Garfield, the work began with a pretty ceremony. Two little four-year-old girls, one of them the daughter of the pastor, Mr Power, turned up the first sod, which was wheeled away by a boy of six summers. All of the congregation who were present then handled the spade for a moment in turn before the field was abandoned to the workmen. It is expected that the corner stone will be laid with appropriate exercises.

PERSONAL AND MISCELLANEOUS

Rev. Robert Laird Collier will visit his friends in America next month.

The Garfield boys at Williams College will spend the coming vacation at Mentor

Fifty thousand children participated in the annual Sunday school parade at Brooklyn, Thursday.

The Hon. Alexander H. Stephens is now able to occupy his rolling chair and attend to correspondence.

The rumor of an engagement between the Princess Beatrice and the eldest son of the Landgrave of Hesse is contradicted.

M Outrey, the former French Minister, left in his wine cellar at Washington, to be sold at auction, about fifty dozen bottles of Maceira of the vintage of 1791

Paul H Hayne is engaged on two new poems—for Emory College commencement and for the dedication of the Confederate monument at Charleston, S C

Professor C D Hartranft, of the Hartford Theological Seminary, is to deliver, June 2o, the annual address before the Christian Fraternity of Dartmouth College

Venie, oldest daughter of Denman Thompson, was married Wednesday to Edward A McFarland, of Philadelphia, at Mr Thompson's residence in Swanzey, N. H

A memorial window is to be placed in Hughenden Church, England, by Sir Samuel Wilson, to commemorate the Queen's happy escape from assassination by the lunatic MacLean

The will of the late Hannah W Richardson, a prominent member of the Society of Friends in Philadelphia bestows $61 000 in cash and 365 shares of valuable stocks upon various benevolent institutions

A Denver wife, tired of waiting for her husband to come home at night, followed him in his various walks about the city, until her indignation was worked up to the proper pitch, and then gave him a cow hiding

It is proposed in England that the house in which Darwin was born be purchased by the public authorities and preserved from destruction, and that a tablet be placed upon it recording the event that has made it famous

Ex-Empress Eugenie was at last accounts in Paris, the guest of the Duke de Mouchy. Her health is so bad that when she reached Paris by easy stages from Nice she had to be borne to her carriage in an arm chair She sees no visitors

President Arthur will visit New York on Decoration Day. He will be accompanied by Secretaries Folger and Lincoln, Attorney General Brewster, Postmaster General Howe and General Grant, and will review the procession at Madison Square

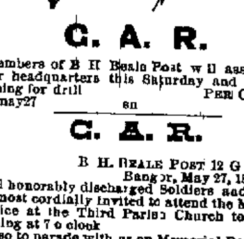

Hon William S Slater, a leading manufacturer and business man is lying hopelessly ill at his residence in Providence, having received a shock of paralysis on Tuesday. He is a brother of John F Slater, the founder of the educational fund for the South

Two Democratic papers have entered upon a task with a courage which approaches the sublime. One is the Louisville Courier Journal, which proposes to make the Democracy a free trade party The other is the Baltimore Day, and the task it has set itself is to persuade the Democracy to become the advocate of civil service reform

The apparent strength of the Greenback party in Missouri is giving the Democrats some uneasiness The closeness of the vote in several of the Congressional districts will make it possible for the Greenbackers to turn the scale against the Democratic candidates, and the Bourbon organs are accordingly trying to persuade the party to disband on the ground that "all the reasonable and worthy reforms which the Greenback party pretends to champion can be best accomplished by a Democratic victory"

It is easy to see now the object Governor Plaisted had in soaping "Dear Sam" and the rest of the Greenbackers. Many of the latter are dissatisfied, and a Portland Greenbacker plainly charges Plaisted with treachery The Governor feels that he is solid with the Democrats and need waste no words in that direction, and now, if he can only succeed in making himself appear a Greenbacker of Greenbackers, he hopes to capture that organization as well. But between the two stools our Jacksonian Governor is likely to come to the ground Although he has captured the Democratic organization he has not secured the rank and file, and Solon's goad stick is likely to be used to good advantage during the campaign —Belfast Journal

LABOR TROUBLES

Will Resist the Demand for Increased Wages

PITTSBURG May 26 At a meeting of iron manufacturers yesterday it was unanimously decided to resist all demands of amalgamated associations for an increase in wages The fifty thousand workmen in the Western iron mills will strike June 1st The meeting ratified the arrangement made that Cincinnati manufacturers shall pay the same rate as Pittsburg now does, $5 50 for puddling until the strike in Pittsburg is ended The amalgamated association will hold another meeting on Saturday.

CLEVELAND, May 26 The Forest City Iron Works and Union Iron Works, both of which have been controlled by Unions for years, have informed their workmen of their intention not to sign a scale which will be presented June 1st Together they employ 7000 men.

NEW YORK.

A Verdict for $21 000

NEW YORK May 26 The Jury in the case of Franklin Horton vs Algernon S Sullivan, Public Administrator of New York, in the Kings County Court, to-day, returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $21 000. The plaintiff, on the night of the first of October, 1876, was robbed of $20-000 worth of diamonds, jewelry, etc. The property was traced to the possession of a diamond peddler who died suddenly without a will and the property came into Sullivan's hands as Public Administrator, who refused to give them up to Horton.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A Late Session.

BOSTON, May 27—1 50 A M At this hour both branches of the Legislature are still in session. The House held a mock session to-night as usual preliminary to final adjournment It has just rejected the salary bill which it sent to the Senate this afternoon, and which was rejected by the latter body, and is now engaged upon other business. The prospect of prorogation before daylight is very slim.

[...] coming season, worn over underskirts of black satin or surah

'Over the-garden-wall' hats will be very fashionably worn all summer at watering-place fêtes and outdoor entertainments of every description

Soft Moorish caps, devoid of brim or even head band, made of the dress material are worn with travelling costumes of cheviot, in mixed colors, or of silver gray

The Gainsborough hats, so long in popular favor, have lost their prestige entirely Manufacturers last season turned them upon the market by the ton, hence their downfall from glory

The newest trimmings upon dress skirts are made with the old fashioned Louis XIV sagging puffs These puffs are really pretty and effective upon the tunic or overdress, but give an underskirt a baggy appearance, quite the reverse of graceful

The prettiest shoulder capes this season are cut quite plain across the back, fitting the shoulders perfectly, but in front they are laid in loose easy folds across the chest, fastened together about the sixth button from the throat with a bow and by long ends of watered silk ribbon

Many slender ladies follow the fashion set by Sarah Bernhardt, and have their gloves reach nearly to the shoulder, pushing them down to the elbow and allowing the extra fullness to wrinkle over the arm. By some this is considered the height of style. There are many others, however, who dislike the fashion as heartily as when it was first introduced

Very long stockinet gloves of pale gold, black, cream color, ivory white, mauve, doe color, olive, flesh, pale buff, or tan, will soon replace the mousquetaire glove of kid, being more suitable and comfortable for warm weather. Some of the handsomest of these new gloves assigned for evening dress have the tops edged with lace, and are delicately embroidered with tiny laurel blossoms and pale green rose leaves

Glacé silks, which always make up into bright and stylish dresses, are to be much worn this summer. Some of the new patterns, have a chene satin stripe, brightened with tiny bouquets of field flowers Satin and Pekin reps are also in fashion once more Two other revivals are taffetas and spun silk. The latter makes very useful and pretty walking costumes for young girls and children.

Quite inexpensive but very charming little dresses can be made for little girls by purchasing American surah, which can be had in all the delicate shades of baby blue, rose pink, cherry, or fawn color, and making perfectly plain princess slips of this fabric, over which can be worn different dresses of dotted Swiss, mull, organdie, or batiste, trimmed with dainty ruffles of some fancy lace and little bows of ribbon matching the shade of the slip. The American surahs are of good width and are now reduced to about half their former price.

MEMORIAL DAY

The Order of Exercises

Comrades of B H Beale Post, G A R, assisted by the ladies of the Relief Corps, are industriously completing the arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial Day Wreaths in abundance are being made by the ladies, but owing to the lateness of the spring there will be a great scarcity of flowers Citizens are requested to make special efforts in their floral offerings, all donations will be gratefully received, and all intending to contribute will bear in mind the necessity of sending them to the Grand Army Headquarters early on the morning of Memorial Day. Besides being strewn with flowers and a wreath the flag they loved so well as to lay down their lives for it will be planted upon the grave of each fallen soldier,

Early Tuesday morning next detachments from the Post will proceed to the various cemeteries around the city and appropriately decorate the graves of their comrades A detachment, commanded by Capt. S H. Downes, will be formed and take up its line of march promptly at 9 o'clock A M, escorted by the Brewer Band, E. W. Edwards, leader. This is a newly organized band of twenty members, and this their first attempt at parade in public At the same hour, 9 o'clock A M, a detachment will be formed and proceed to Mount Pleasant, under command of the officer of the day, J. Citizens residing on the route of the procession will add greatly to the significance of the occasion by the display of flags and otherwise decorating their stores and residences, and all such manifestations of respect will be gratefully appreciated by the members of the Grand Army

AMUSEMENTS

Keene

A brilliant audience assembled at the Opera House last evening and gave Mr Thos W Keene a very enthusiastic reception Shakespeare's powerful tragedy Richard III was presented and lovers of the drama were granted the privilege of witnessing one of the finest entertainments ever given in our city Mr Keene filled the difficult role of Richard in a very masterly manner and was continually greeted with rapturous applause, being called before the curtain several times The support was excellent and the play was in every respect a superb rendition Mr Keene is sure of crowded houses whenever he visits Bangor

Jefferson

This afternoon at half past two Joseph Jefferson will appear at the Opera House in his world renowned impersonation of 'Rip Van Winkle,' and in the evening as 'Bob Acres in Sheridan's comedy of the Rivals.' Enormous audiences will witness both performances For the matinee the doors will be open at half past one and children will be admitted to the gallery at twenty five cents each

The Minstrels

Skiff's California minstrels will appear at the Opera House next Monday evening when a choice programme of mirth and melody will be offered Seats may now be secured at the box office

EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS

Joint Session of the Maine Pedagogical Society and Penobscot Educational Society

A joint meeting of the Maine Pedagogical Society and the Penobscot Educational Association is now in session in Bangor Yesterday was devoted to the holding of a special meeting of the former society and to-day the latter organization will hold its first meeting

The opening session of the meetings of the Maine Pedagogical Society commenced in City Hall at 9 30 o'clock yesterday forenoon The attendance was highly satisfactory and the seats in the body of the house were well filled Many prominent educators from other portions of the State were present Prof Chapman of Bowdoin College is President of the Society and presided on this occasion In the absence of Prof Hall, the Secretary, Mr C M Jordan, of Bangor was chosen Secretary pro tem

Mr Thos Tash Superintendent of Schools in the city of Portland, read a historical sketch of the Maine Educational Association and of Educational legislation in Maine previous to the formation of the Association A brief report of the able and elaborate paper will be found below

In endeavoring to promote any important interest it is worth while occasionally to review past progress for the sake of profiting by its experiences and for encouragement to future effort A review of the salient features of the educational history of our State will show progress although that progress has at times been slow, so slow as to appear to retrograde Two influences have been especially potential in producing whatever progress has been made—public opinion and law The one is the breeze that has impelled forward, the other the rudder that has given direction As the demands of the people for educational privileges, for their children have become more pressing, and their appreciation of these blessings higher, their representatives have responded to this sentiment by the enactment of laws giving the educational system greater efficiency and better direction

In 1820, when Maine became a distinct State, the education of her citizens was not forgotten in the formation of the constitution In Art VIII, there is not only set forth the duty of the Legislature in regard to public schools and a proper limit set or direction given to their action, and likewise in regards to academies, colleges and other seminaries of learning, but the reason for this demand is distinctly stated The school system of Maine, on the adoption of the constitution, was the same as that of the parent state, Massachusetts The inhabitants of each town were required to establish public schools and continue them a certain period each year In 1821, the Maine Legislature enacted a general school law which differed from the former law only in this, that a certain amount of money was to be raised by each town, on polls and property of not less than forty cents for each inhabitant, to be apportioned among the several districts, and annually expended for public schools The previous school laws of the parent State and the school laws then enacted were the basis of our school laws as they have existed in most of their essential features for over half a century By the first general school law, the district system inherited from the parent State was recognized Those who can remember the condition of our schools from 1835 to 1845 will recollect that the system needed revision. There were earnest discussions of various plans for action, both in the Legislature and in State educational conventions, in 1840 to 1845 It had become a settled conviction that the free common school is a the foundation of a republic In 1845, an act to promote the usefulness of common schools passed the popular branch of the Legislature, but was defeated in the Senate. In the winter of 1846, the friends of education held a State convention at Augusta and memorialized the Legislature asking for a board of education and their request was granted. Thus was inaugurated one of the most desirable and efficient educational movements ever established in any State. In 1852, an act was given passage establishing in each county a commissioner of schools. The system was not a popular one and it shortly led to the establishment of a State superintendent of schools. The demand that had arisen for better trained teachers kept alive teachers' institutes and conventions and led to the establishment of normal departments in existing academies and providentially to the establishment of two normal schools. Besides other improvements in our school laws, the minimum tax of forty cents per capita of 1821 was raised in 1865 to seventy-five cents and in 1868 to one dollar, but on the passage of the mill tax was reduced to eighty cents.

The first meeting of the Maine Educational Association was holden at Lewiston Nov 25, 1867. J E Littlefield of Bangor, J H Hanson of Waterville, and Thomas Tash of Lewiston, were appointed a committee to draft a constitution The association organized by the election of the following officers President, Rev Edward Ballard, D D, of Brunswick, Geo M Gage, Vice-President, Chas B Stetson, Secretary and Treasurer The results of the meeting were, 1st It encouraged the friends of education to renewed efforts 2nd It fortified the recently elected Governor, Gen Chamberlain in taking strong grounds in favor of an educational revival in the State, and 3rd It saved the Legislature, the next winter the office of State Superintendent The second meeting of the Association was held in Augusta, Nov 23, 1868 Mr Warren Johnson, of Topsham had just succeeded Dr Ballard as State Superintendent, and addressed this meeting giving his five points of departure 1st, County Supervision, 2nd, County Institutes, 3rd Graded Certificates, 4th, Uniformity of Text Books, and 5th, Compulsory Education At this meeting it was adopted by the Association to assume the publication of a monthly paper then known as Maine Normal and change its title to Maine Journal of Education, twelve monthly editors were chosen, with Mr A P. Stone, of Portland as resident editor. This paper was subsequently merged into the New England Journal of Education The third annual meeting of the Association was held at Bath Nov 15, 1869 Prof Stone presiding The fourth annual meeting was held in Augusta, Nov 21, 22 and 23, 1870, Dr Hanson presiding The fifth annual meeting was held in Portland, Nov 27, 28 and 29 1871, Mr. Rounds presiding The mill tax was soon after passed in 1872 and the bill establishing free high schools the following winter The sixth annual meeting was held in Bangor, Oct 22 23 and 24, 1872 Mr. Tash presiding Resolutions in favor of abolishing the district system and in favor of enlarging the scope of the public school by the introduction of music and other useful studies were introduced and passed The seventh annual meeting was held in Waterville Nov 24 and 25, 1873, the eighth at Rockland, Aug 25 and 26 1874 and the ninth at Augusta, Nov 23 and 24 1875 This meeting was of more than ordinary interest In it Supt Johnson organized the centennial educational work of the State Within two years the association has lost two of its most active members—Stetson and Johnson At this meeting Mr Rounds asked for a meeting to form a Professional Organization of Teachers" the inception of the Pedagogical Society and the death warrant of the Maine Educational Association, though the latter continued its work several years longer while the other was gaining strength and reaching its majority The tenth annual meeting was held in Bath, Dec 27 and 28, 1876, the eleventh in Lewiston, Dec 27, 28 and 29, 1877, the twelfth at Brunswick Dec 26 and 27 1878, the thirteenth at Gardiner Dec 30, and 31, 1879, and the fourteenth, at Pittsfield, Dec 29 1880 The fifteenth annual and last meeting of the Maine Educational Association was held at Biddeford in conjunction with a meeting of the Maine Pedagogical Society upon whose shoulders it was about to cast it mantle and to which it was about to relinquish the educational field of Maine

Mr W J Corthell presented a report of the Society's committee on instruction in reading and spelling This committee comprises Mr Corthell, of the Gorham Normal School, Mr Jordan, of the Bangor High School, and Miss Pettingill of the Lewiston Public Schools The report was very interesting and instructive and if our columns were not so crowded we should be pleased to allude at length to its salient points After a brief discussion the society adjourned till afternoon

In the afternoon the attendance was still larger than at the morning session The opening paper was 'The office of Supervision in the Improvement of our Public Schools,' by Mr G A Fletcher, Superintendent of Schools, Augusta The speaker affirmed that good supervision with poor teachers is more effective than good teachers with poor supervision good supervision he considered of vital importance A discussion followed which was participated in by Messrs Tash Corthell, Jordan and others

Miss Starrett of Belfast then read the report of the Society's committee on instruction in language. The committee embraced Mr Tash of Portland, Prof Chapman, of Bowdoin College, and Miss Starrett, of Belfast Public Schools. The afternoon meeting closed with a discussion on primary instruction in language

The evening session was called to order at half past seven Remarks were made with reference to the proposed Longfellow memorial by Messrs Tash, Corthell and others A paper was then read by Mr Morrill, of the Portland High School, upon the "Public Schools and their Critics," in which strong ground was taken in favor of the present course of study in the schools The public exercises were then closed and a short business meeting of the Society was held

The Penobscot Educational Association holds its first meeting at City Hall to day The hour of commencement will be 9 o'clock and the session will finish during the forenoon The following is the programme

FROM AROOSTOOK

The Prohibition Convention

The Aroostook Prohibition County Convention met at Presque Isle Wednesday forenoon, May 24th The assembly was called to order by Ira G Hersey, who nominated Geo F Whidden as chairman, Ernest McGlauflin was chosen secretary The Committee on Credentials reported ten delegates present The Rev. Geo M. Park, who had been chosen as a delegate, declined to serve as such, as he intended to act with the Republicans, consequently, could not consistently assist in the proceedings of this convention After choosing the necessary committees and attending to other business matters, the following county nominations were made, the Committee on Nominations being instructed to fill all other vacancies

County Attorney—Ira G Hersey, Houlton.
Sheriff—George F Whidden, Presque Isle.
County Commissioners—Chas Dunn, Sr., Houlton, Theodore Foster, Ashland, Register of Deeds—Hadley Fairfield, Houlton.
County Treasurer—Charles B Merritt, Houlton.

The platform of the state and national Prohibition parties was adopted Voted to send delegates to the State Prohibition Convention. The Rev Mr. Park made a speech showing the past and present attitude of the Republican party on the temperance question, to which Messrs. Hersey and Plummer took exceptions, thereupon the reverend gentleman offered to meet them in joint debate, at any five points in the county, and discuss the matter, but his offer was declined. The attendance was small, not over twenty-five persons, including delegates, being present at any one time. H.

Mrs. Galen C Moses, of Bath, died very suddenly in that city, Tuesday evening. She was sitting in the parlor talking, when she fell forward, and died instantly. It was a case of apoplexy. She was about 45 years old.

THE SECRET OF THE GREAT SHOW'S POPULARITY

P T Barnum's Policy and Why It Always Wins.

The fact that the Great Barnum and London Show is to exhibit in Bangor on Saturday, July 15th, suggests that Phineas is a representative American, thoroughly understands American human nature, and to use one of those homely but forcible phrases in which he delights to illustrate great facts knows which side his bread is buttered on Where other managers draw individuals he draws whole families and neighborhoods, because where they exhibit single specimens he trots out groups herds and droves of wild animals Take the present season as an example If any other show in the country has even a single Giraffe, it has no more Barnum has ten in the tented field, and an equal number in reserve With other shows a few ordinary elephants—at the most five or six—make a huge herd Barnum has 22 and among them Jumbo, the gigantic beast whose name is in all men's mouths and who has proved the living sensation of the times, and, besides, the $10 000 Baby Elephant, born at Bridgeport February 2nd, 1882 Where they introduce one trick horse in the ring he fills it with just 20 thoroughbred performing stallions While they never exhibit any notable animals in parade, he throws open to the public 16 cages of rare wild beasts, has led and driven, as many more in procession and supplements all this with 6 open dens of majestic and savage performing beasts with a man or woman trainer in each den Where they put whatever living human curiosities they may have in a side show, he includes the most conspicuous ones—always high salaried features—and presents them, without extra charge in the museum department of the Great Show Where they made parade with a straggling line of monotonous cages and perhaps a couple of band wagons, he displays 33 genuine chariots of novel and costly design With them one ring and a limited company of passable performers suffices He uses three rings and fills them all with only the greatest artists He has the only complete Roman Hippodrome in America under the largest canvas ever made This is a brief resume of a policy which has borne golden fruit and brought reputation as well as fortune It cannot but win and will win here again

The Auburn manufacturers report an increase in fall orders 1 783 cases have been shipped this week The trade may be said to be progressing favorably, although buyers are operating cautiously The boot factories are in full operation, with enough orders on hand to keep them busy most of the season. All kinds of goods are receiving fair attention, and the outlook is quite promising For the finer grades of work such as are made in Lynn and Auburn, orders are increasing and the factories will soon begin running with full forces Prices are growing firmer as large movements in leather are taken as a sure indication that stock is now at its lowest point The number of buyers in Boston is seventy five, the same as last week Chicago St. Louis and Cincinnati are well represented, as are other leading distributing points in the West The visitors are quite sanguine of the fall trade and if the crops come up to a full average there will be a much larger business than last year, Financially, they say, the West is in a more healthy condition than ever before

REPUBLICAN CAUCUS.

Discussing the Deadlock

WASHINGTON, May 26. Immediately after the adjournment of the House to-day a largely attended caucus of the Republican members was held. The situation in the House was discussed and the prevailing sentiment was in favor of a strict adherence to the present policy. Messrs. Hubbell and Haskell were the only speakers who expressed conservative views. The members of the Election Committee explained minutely the details of the Mackey-Dibble election case, and claimed that the charges of fraud had been thoroughly investigated by the committee and that the report of the majority was fully justified by the facts in the case. Representative Reed, Chairman of the Judiciary Committee, said it was perfectly evident from the full and ample explanations made by the Elections Committee that all the material allegations of fraud had been fairly tried before the committee with patience and decided after abundant hearing, that after demurring to the jurisdiction of the Committee, and claiming he could not be made a party to the contest, had consented to the form and substance of the affidavits, and that the Committee based the report on the majorities admitted by the Democratic election managers themselves. He proceeded to argue that the only appeal from the decision of the Committee, was to the House; that the House could not properly decide upon any course of action without a full discussion; that to act on the assertions of a disappointed and guilty litigant would be an insult to the Committee, whose fairness even Messrs. Blackburn and Carlisle, to-day, had been forced to admit in the House. There was only one course to pursue and that was to discuss the matter before the world and prove to everybody the baselessness of this last resort of Procrastinating Guilt.

"Let us, he continued, "make this a fair and open proposition to discuss and in the face of the country vote on the question of recommittal If the minority refuse such a proposition and persist in their attempt to subvert the Constitution by trying to vest in the Governors of States the power lodged in the House of deciding who are its members, we must invoke the power of the Constitution and ride over their factions and partisan obstructions."

Short Speeches

were made by a number of Representatives, all enthusiastically counselling a continuation of the struggle. Mr. Reed then offered the following preamble and resolution for presentation in the House to-morrow, and they were unanimously adopted:

"A proposition having been submitted to the House by Mr. Blackburn on behalf of the minority, the majority submit the following: Whereas, We are entirely satisfied that the allegations made by Samuel Dibble as to forgery and falsified evidence has been fully, fairly and exhaustively considered by the Committee on Elections, and arguments thereon have been fully heard, and whereas the matter now comes up for consideration in the House and there has been no discussion whatever in the House thereon, and as the House cannot vote intelligently with no guide except mere allegations on one side, on any proposition to refer to a new committee a question which has already been considered by the appropriate committee, but must have the benefit of full and free discussion in order to enable that House to decide the question understandingly, therefore we submit the Following Proposition:

"Resolved that the House immediately proceed to the consideration of the Mackey Dibble case, and after six hours discussion the House shall vote on the question of recommittal by a yea and nay vote and if the House decide this in the negative, it shall thereupon continue to consider the case until it be finished." The caucus then adjourned.

The Case of Lieut. Flipper.

WASHINGTON, May 26. It is now understood that Secretary Lincoln has approved the recommendation of Judge Advocate General Swaim for mitigation of the sentence of Lieut. Flipper, convicted of gross violation of army regulations and sentenced to dismissal from service. The President will not act upon the case at present, but it is believed that he is disposed to grant the mitigation recommended

Naval Matters

Chief Naval Constructor Wilson leaves here this evening to make an inspection of the navy yards at Charlestown, Mass., and Portsmouth, N. H.

A Severe Accident.

Hon. Russel Erret, of Pennsylvania, while alighting from a herdic passenger coach at the entrance of the House of Representatives this morning, the horse started suddenly, throwing Errett head first against the granite steps, he receiving a very severe cut across the nose and cheeks. It is thought that his nose is broken. Errett is lying in the room of the Committee on Ways and Means where a physician has been summoned.

Interesting Statistics.

The Census office has issued a bulletin showing by the census of 1880 the number of persons in the United States, 50,155 783, area in square miles, 2,900,170; number of families, 9,945,916, number of dwellings, 8,955,812.

C.; Alex. Mitchell, Wisconsin; John S Phelps, Missouri, and James Chestnut, Jr., South Carolina. The list will probably be completed by the selection of Wm. A. Wheeler, New York, who if nominated will be Chairman of the Commission, and J. A. Ambler, Ohio. The names of the Commissioners will be sent to the Senate the early part of next week.

Another Call,

Secretary Folger will, to-morrow or Monday, issue a call for fifteen million dollars of continued 6 per cent. bonds to mature some time in August.

LABOR TROUBLES.

Will Resist the Demand for Increased Wages.

PITTSBURG, May 26. At a meeting of iron manufacturers yesterday it was unanimously decided to resist all demands of amalgamated associations for an increase in wages. The fifty thousand workmen in the Western iron mills will strike June 1st. The meeting ratified the arrangement made that Cincinnati manufacturers shall pay the same rate as Pittsburg now does, $5 50 for puddling until the strike a Pittsburg is ended. The amalgamated association will hold another meeting on Saturday.

CLEVELAND, May 26. The Forest City Iron Works and Union Iron Works, both of which have been controlled by Unions for years, have informed their workmen of their intention not to sign a scale which will be presented June 1st. Together they employ 7000 men.

NEW YORK.

A Verdict for $21,000.

NEW YORK, May 26. The Jury in the case of Franklin Horton vs. Algernon S. Sullivan, Public Administrator of New York, in the Kings County Court, to-day, returned a verdict in favor of plaintiff for $21,000. The plaintiff, on the night of the first of October, 1876, was robbed of $20-000 worth of diamonds, jewelry, etc. The property was traced to the possession of a diamond peddler who died suddenly without a will and the property came into Sullivan's hands as Public Administrator, who refused to give them up to Horton.

MASSACHUSETTS.

A Late Session.

BOSTON, May 27—1.50 A. M. At this hour both branches of the Legislature are still in session. The House held a mock session to-night as usual preliminary to final adjournment. It has just rejected the salary bill which it sent to the Senate this afternoon, and which was re[illegible] by the latter body, and is now engaged upon other business. The prospect of prorogation before daylight is very slim.

PENNSYLVANIA.

Fire and Explosion.

PHILADELPHIA, May 26. John McNeal's grocery store was burned to-day. A large quantity of coal oil in the cellar exploded with terrific force, injuring some persons seriously and 20 others slightly. Loss about $9,000.

An Infernal Machine.

TROY, May 26. An infernal machine containing powder and fuse has been found in the porch of the office of the Weekly News, Evansburg, Pa. An attempt had been made to set the fuse on fire. An inscription on the machine warned the former editor to leave town. He had offended some one by his temperance principles.

VIRGINIA.

Defeat of Bourbons.

NORFOLK, May 26. The Municipal election, yesterday, resulted in the re-election of Mayor Lamb by 300 majority. The rest of the Readjuster Republican ticket was elected with the exception of the colored candidate for street inspector.

PETERSBURG, May 26. Full returns of the municipal election held here yesterday were not received until this morning. T. J. Jarrath, Readjuster, was elected Mayor, over T. H. Archer, Democrat, his majority being 1,059. The entire Readjuster ticket for city officers was elected. The first and sixth wards elected two colored justices of the peace and two colored councilmen.

LATEST NOTES ABOUT THE FASHIONS.

[From the N. Y. Evening Post.]

Ruches outrival ruffles or plaitings for dress trimmings

Pale amber and cypress green are fashionably combined in French dinner toilets of satin and moire.

New embroidered lace fichus of black net glitter with a dense covering of fine-cut jet bugles and pendants.

Velvet loops and large Alsatian bows of velvet will be much used to trim even summer bonnets of delicate straw.

Black Sicilienne combined with black velvet or moire Francais is used for the most costly and elegant costumes.

Large Watteau fans are now painted in floral designs, matching those seen upon dress fabrics of foulard or sateen.

Black tulle, beaded with gold, silver, or jet, will be a fashionable evening dress the coming season, worn over underskirts of black satin or surah.

"Over-the-garden-wall" hats will be very fashionably worn all summer at watering-place fêtes and outdoor entertainments of every description.

Soft Moorish caps, devoid of brim or even head-band, made of the dress material, are worn with travelling costumes of cheviot, in mixed colors, or of silver gray.

The Gainsborough hats, so long in popular favor, have lost their prestige entirely. Manufacturers last season turned them upon the market by the ton; hence their downfall from glory.

The newest trimmings upon dress skirts are made with the old-fashioned Louis XIV. sagging puffs. These puffs are really pretty and effective upon the tunic or overdress, but give an underskirt a baggy appearance, quite the reverse of graceful.

The prettiest shoulder capes this season are cut quite plain across the back, fitting the shoulders perfectly, but in front they are laid in loose easy folds across the chest, fastened together about the sixth button from the throat with a bow and by long ends of watered silk ribbon.

Many slender ladies follow the fashion set by Sarah Bernhardt, and have their gloves reach nearly to the shoulder, pushing them down to the elbow and allowing the extra fullness to wrinkle over the arm. By some this is considered the height of style. There are many others, however, who dislike the fashion as heartily as when it was first introduced.

Very long stockinet gloves of pale gold, black, cream color, ivory white, mauve, doe color, olive, flesh, pale buff, or tan, will soon replace the mousquetaire glove of kid, being more suitable and comfortable for warm weather. Some of the handsomest of these new gloves assigned for evening dress have the tops edged with lace, and are delicately embroidered with tiny laurel blossoms and pale green rose leaves.

Glacé silks, which always make up into bright and stylish dresses, are to be much worn this summer. Some of the new patterns have a chene satin stripe, brightened with tiny bouquets of field flowers. Satin and Pekin reps are also in fashion once more. Two other revivals are taffetas and spun silk. The latter makes very useful and pretty walking costumes for young girls and children.

Quite inexpensive but very charming little dresses can be made for little girls by purchasing An erican surah, which can be had in all the delicate shades of baby blue, rose pink, cherry, or fawn color, and making perfectly plain princess styles of this fabric, over which can be worn different dresses of dotted Swiss, mull, organdie, or batiste, trimmed with dainty ruffles of some fancy lace and little bows of ribbon matching the shade of the slip. The American surahs are of good width and are now reduced to about half their former price.

MEMORIAL DAY

The Order of Exercises

Comrades of B. H. Beale Post, G. A. R, assisted by the ladies of the Relief Corps, are industriously completing the arrangements for the proper observance of Memorial Day. Wreaths in abundance are being made by the ladies, but owing to the lateness of the spring there will be a great scarcity of flowers. Citizens are requested to make special efforts in their floral offerings; all donations will be gratefully received, and all intending to contribute will bear in mind the necessity of sending them to the Grand Army Headquarters early on the morning of Memorial Day. Besides being strewn with flowers and a wreath, the flag they loved so well as to lay down their lives for it, will be planted upon the grave of each fallen soldier.

Early Tuesday morning next detachments from the Post will proceed to the various cemeteries around the city and appropriately decorate the graves of their comrades. A detachment, commanded by Capt. S. H. Downes, will be formed and take up its line of march promptly at 9 o'clock A. M., escorted by the Brewer Band, E. W. Edwards, leader. This is a newly organized band of twenty members, and this their first attempt at parade in public. At the same hour, 9 o'clock A. M., a detachment will be formed and proceed to Mount Pleasant, under command of the officer of the day, J. F. Maloney, escorted by the Milford Band, A. W. Ford, leader.

The procession will be formed on Hammond street, at half-past one P. M., the right of the line resting on Main street, and will move promptly in the following order:

Citizens residing on the route of the procession will add greatly to the significance of the occasion by the display of flags and otherwise decorating their stores and residences, and all such manifestations of respect will be gratefully appreciated by the members of the Grand Army.

AMUSEMENTS.

Keene.

A brilliant audience assembled at the Opera House last evening and gave Mr Thos. W. Keene a very enthusiastic reception. Shakespeare's powerful tragedy Richard III was presented and lovers of the drama were granted the privilege of witnessing one of the finest entertainments ever given in our city. Mr. Keene filled the difficult role of Richard in a very masterly manner and was continually greeted with rapturous applause, being called before the curtain several times. The support was excellent and the play was in every respect a superb rendition. Mr. Keene is sure of crowded houses whenever he visits Bangor.

Jefferson

This afternoon at half-past two Joseph Jefferson will appear at the Opera House in his world renowned impersonation of "Rip Van Winkle," and in the evening as "Bob Acres" in Sheridan's comedy of the "Rivals." Enormous audiences will witness both performances For the matinee, the doors will be open at half-past one, and children will be admitted to the gallery at twenty-five cents each.

The Minstrels

Skiff's California minstrels will appear at the Opera House next Monday evening, when a choice programme of mirth and melody will be offered. Seats may now be secured at the box office.

EDUCATIONAL MEETINGS.

Joint Session of the Maine Pedagogical Society and Penobscot Educational Society

A joint meeting of the Maine Pedagogical Society and the Penobscot Educational Association is now in session in Bangor. Yesterday was devoted to the holding of a special meeting of the former society and to-day the latter organization will hold its first meeting.

The opening session of the meetings of the Maine Pedagogical Society commenced in City Hall at 9 30 o'clock yesterday forenoon. The attendance was highly satisfactory and the seats in the body of the house were well filled. Many prominent educators from other portions of the State were present. Prof. Chapman, of Bowdoin College, is President of the Society and presided on this occasion. In the absence of Prof. Hall, the Secretary, Mr. C. M. Jordan, of Bangor, was chosen Secretary pro tem.

Mr. Thos. Tash, Superintendent of Schools in the city of Portland, read a historical sketch of the Maine Educational Association and of Educational legislation in Maine previous to the formation of the Association. A brief report of the able and elaborate paper will be found below:

In endeavoring to promote any important interest, it is worth while occasionally to review past progress for the sake of profiting by its experiences and for encouragement to future effort. A review of the salient features of the educational history of our State will show progress, although that progress has at times been slow, so slow as to appear to retrograde. Two influences have been especially potential in producing whatever progress has been made—public opinion and law The one is the breeze that has impelled forward, the other the rudder that has given direction. As the demands of the people for educational privileges, for their children have become more pressing, and their appreciation of these blessings higher, their representatives have responded to this sentiment by the enactment of laws giving the educational system greater efficiency and better direction.

In 1820, when Maine became a distinct State, the education of her citizens was not forgotten in the formation of the constitution. In Art. VII., there is not only set forth the duty of the Legislature in regard to public schools and a proper limit set or direction given to their action, and likewise in regards to academies, colleges and other seminaries of learning, but the reason for this demand is distinctly stated. The school system of Maine, on the adoption of the constitution, was the same as that of the parent state, Massachusetts. The inhabitants of each town were required to establish public schools and continue them a certain period each year. In 1821, the Maine Legislature enacted a general school law which differed from the former law only in this, that a certain amount of money was to be raised by each town, on polls and property of not less than forty cents for each inhabitant, to be apportioned among the several districts, and annually expended for public schools. The previous school laws of the parent State and the school laws then enacted were the basis of our school laws as they have existed in most of their essential features for over half a century. By the first general school law, the district system inherited from the parent State was recognized. Those who can remember the condition of our schools from 1835 to 1845 will recollect that the system needed revision. There were earnest discussions of various plans for action, both in the Legislature and in State educational conventions, in 1840 to 1845. It had become a settled conviction that the free common school is at the foundation of a republic. In 1845, an act to promote the usefulness of common schools passed the popular branch of the Legislature, but was defeated in the Senate. In the winter of 1846, the friends of education held a State convention at Augusta and memorialized the Legislature asking for a board of education and their request was granted. Thus was inaugurated one of the most desirable and efficient educational movements ever established in any State. In 1852, an act was given passage establishing in each county a commissioner of schools. The system was not a popular one and it shortly led to the establishment of a State superintendent of schools. The demand that had arisen for better trained teachers kept alive teachers' institutes and conventions and led to the establishment of normal departments in existing academies and providentially to the establishment of two normal schools. Besides other improvements in our school laws, the minimum tax of forty cents per capita of 1821 was raised in 1865 to seventy-five cents and in 1868 to one dollar, but on the passage of the mill tax was reduced to eighty cents.

The first meeting of the Maine Educational Association was holden at Lewiston, Nov. 25, 1867. J. E Littlefield of Bangor, J. H. Hanson of Waterville, and Thomas Tash of Lewiston, were appointed a committee to draft a constitution The association organized by the election of the following officers: President, Rev. Edward Ballard, D.D, of Brunswick; Geo. M. Gage, Vice-President, Chas. B. Stetson, Secretary and Treasurer. The results of the meeting were, 1st, It encouraged the friends of education to renewed efforts. 2nd, It fortified the recently elected Governor, Gen. Chamberlain, in taking strong grounds in favor of an educational revival in the State, and 3rd, It saved the Legislature, the next winter, the office of State Superintendent. The second meeting of the Association was held in Augusta, Nov 23, 1868. Mr. Warren Johnson, of Topsham, had just succeeded Dr. Ballard as State Superintendent, and addressed this meeting, giving his five points of departure: 1st, County Supervision; 2nd, County Institutes, 3rd Graded Certificates; 4th, Uniformity of Text Books, and 5th, Compulsory Education. At this meeting it was adopted by the Association to assume the publication of a monthly paper then known as Maine Normal and change its title to Maine Journal of Education; twelve monthly editors were chosen, with Mr. A. P. Stone, of Portland, as resident editor. This paper was subsequently merged into the New England Journal of Education. The third annual meeting of the Association was held at Bath, Nov. 15, 1869, Prof. Stone presiding. The fourth annual meeting was held in Augusta, Nov. 21, 22 and 23, 1870, Dr. Hanson presiding. The fifth annual meeting was held in Portland, Nov. 27, 28 and 29, 1871, Mr. Rounds presiding. The mill tax was soon after passed in 1872, and the bill establishing free high schools the following winter. The sixth annual meeting was held in Bangor, Oct 22, 23 and 24, 1872, Mr. Tash presiding. Resolutions in favor of abolishing the district system and in favor of enlarging the scope of the public school by the introduction of music and other useful studies were introduced and passed. The seventh annual meeting was held in Waterville, Nov. 24 and 25, 1873; the eighth at Rockland, Aug. 25 and 26, 1874 and the ninth at Augusta, Nov. 23 and 24, 1875 This meeting was of more than ordinary interest. In it Supt. Johnson organized the centennial educational work of the State. Within two years, the association has lost two of its most active members—Stetson and Johnson. At this meeting Mr. Rounds asked for a meeting to form a "Professional Organization of Teachers," the inception of the Pedagogical Society, and the death warrant of the Maine Educational Association, though the latter continued its work several years longer while the other was gaining strength and reaching its majority. The tenth annual meeting was held in Bath, Dec. 27 and 28, 1876; the eleventh in Lewiston, Dec. 27, 28 and 29, 1877, the twelfth at Brunswick, Dec. 26 and 27, 1878; the thirteenth at Gardiner, Dec. 30, and 31, 1879; and the fourteenth, at Pittsfield, Dec. 29, 1880. The fifteenth annual and last meeting of the Maine Educational Association was held at Biddeford in conjunction with a meeting of the Maine Pedagogical Society upon whose shoulders it was about to cast it mantle and to which it was about to relinquish the educational field of Maine.

Mr. W. J. Corthell presented a report of the Society's committee on instruction in reading and spelling. This committee comprises Mr. Corthell, of the Gorham Normal School; Mr. Jordan, of the Bangor High School, and Miss. Pettingill, of the Lewiston Public Schools. The report was very interesting and instructive and if our columns were not so crowded we should be pleased to allude at length to its salient points. After a brief discussion the society adjourned till afternoon.

In the afternoon, the attendance was still larger than at the morning session. The opening paper was "The office of Supervision in the Improvement of our Public Schools," by Mr. G. A. Fletcher, Superintendent of Schools, Augusta. The speaker affirmed that good supervision with poor teachers is more effective than good teachers with poor supervision; good supervision be considered of vital importance. A discussion followed which was participated in by Messrs. Tash Corthell, Jordan and others.

Miss Starrett, of Belfast, then read the report of the Society's committee on instruction in language. The committee embraced Mr. Tash, of Portland, Prof Chapman, of Bowdoin College, and Miss Starrett, of Belfast Public Schools. The afternoon meeting closed with a discussion on primary instruction in language.

The evening session was called to order at half-past seven. Remarks were made with reference to the proposed Longfellow memorial by Messrs. Tash, Corthell and others. A paper was then read by Mr. Morrill, of the Portland High School, upon the "Public Schools and their Critics," in which strong ground was taken in favor of the present course of study in the schools. The public exercises were then closed and a short business meeting of the Society was held.

The Penobscot Educational Association holds its first meeting at City Hall to-day. The hour of commencement will be 9 o'clock and the session will finish during the forenoon. The following is the programme:

FROM AROOSTOOK.

The Prohibition Convention.

The Aroostook Prohibition County Convention met at Presque Isle. Wednesday forenoon, May 24th. The assembly was called to order by Ira G. Hersey, who nominated Geo. F. Whidden as chairman, Ernest McGlauflin was chosen secretary. The Committee on Credentials reported ten delegates present. The Rev. Geo. M. Park, who had been chosen as a delegate, declined to serve as such, as he intended to act with the Republicans, consequently, could not consistently assist in the proceedings of this convention. After choosing the necessary committees and attending to other business matters, the following county nominations were made, the Committee on Nominations being instructed to fill all other vacancies:

County Attorney—Ira G. Hersey, Houlton.

Sheriff—George F. Whidden, Presque Isle.

County Commissioners—Chas. Dunn, Sr., Houlton; Theodore Foster, Ashland; Register of Deeds—Hadley Fairfield, Houlton.

County Treasurer—Charles B. Merritt, Houlton.

The platform of the state and national Prohibition parties was adopted. Voted to send delegates to the State Prohibition Convention. The Rev. Mr. Park made a speech showing the past and present attitude of the Republican party on the temperance question, to which Messrs. Hersey and Plummer took exceptions; thereupon the reverend gentleman offered to meet them in joint debate, at any five points in the county, and discuss the matter, but his offer was declined. The attendance was small, not over twenty-five persons, including delegates, being present at any one time. H.

Mrs. Galen C. Moses, of Bath, died very suddenly in that city, Tuesday evening. She was sitting in the parlor talking, when she fell forward, and died instantly. It was a case of apoplexy. She was about 45 years old.

Richard Rawley, for drunkenness, was allowed to go on a suspended mittimus.

Patrick O'Connell, for drunkenness, was sentenced to jail for 60 days.

John Landers, for drunkenness, was fined $5 and costs.

THE SECRET OF THE GREAT SHOW'S POPULARITY.

P. T. Barnum's Policy and Why It Always Wins.

The fact that the Great Barnum and London Show is to exhibit in Bangor, on Saturday, July 15th, suggests that Phineas is a representative American, thoroughly understands American human nature, and, to use one of those homely but forcible phrases in which he delights to illustrate great facts, "knows which side his bread is buttered on." Where other managers draw individuals, he draws whole families and neighborhoods, because where they exhibit single specimens he trots out groups, herds and droves of wild animals Take the present season as an example If any other show in the country has even a single Giraffe, it has no more. Barnum has ten in the tented field, and an equal number in reserve. With other shows a few ordinary elephants—at the most five or six—make a "huge herd." Barnum has 22, and among them Jumbo, the gigantic beast whose name is in all men's mouths and who has proved the living sensation of the times, and, besides, the $300,-000 Baby Elephant, born at Bridgeport February 2nd, 1882 Where they introduce one trick-horse in the ring, he fills it with just 20 thoroughbred performing stallions. While they never exhibit any notable animals in parade, he throws open to the public 16 cages of rare wild beasts, has, led and driven, as many more in procession, and supplements all this with 6 open dens of majestic and savage performing beasts, with a man or woman trainer in each den. Where they put whatever living human curiosities they may have, in a side show, he includes the most conspicuous ones—always high salaried features—and presents them, without extra charge, in the museum department of the Great Show Where they made parade with a straggling line of monotonous cages and perhaps a couple of band wagons, he displays 33 genuine chariots of novel and costly design. With them, one ring and a limited company of passable performers suffices He uses three rings and fills them all with only the greatest artists. He has the only complete Roman Hippodrome in America under the largest canvas ever made. This is a brief resume of a policy which has borne golden fruit and brought reputation, as well as fortune It cannot but win, and will win here again

The Auburn manufacturers report an increase in fall orders. 1,783 cases have been shipped, this week. The trade may be said to be progressing favorably, although buyers are operating cautiously. The boot factories are in full operation, with enough orders on hand to keep them busy most of the season. All kinds of goods are receiving fair attention, and the outlook is quite promising. For the finer grades of work, such as are made in Lynn and Auburn, orders are increasing, and the factories will soon begin running with full forces. Prices are growing firmer, as large movements in leather are taken as a sure indication that stock is now at its lowest point. The number of buyers in Boston is seventy-five, the same as last week. Chicago, St. Louis and Cincinnati are well represented, as are other leading distributing points in the West. The visitors are quite sanguine of the fall trade, and if the crops come up to a full average there will be a much larger business than last year. Financially, they say, the West is in a more healthy condition than ever before.

Cumberland.

At Saccarappa, Tuesday afternoon, a boy and two girls, all French, were rowing in a flat bottomed boat above the falls, when the boat got into the current and was carried over the dam. The boat was not overturned and the occupants were not spilled out but clung to their craft. Their danger was observed from the iron bridge, and people rushed to their rescue and caught the boat just in time to prevent it going over the second falls.

THE FIRST DANDELION.

BY AUGUSTA MOORE.

"Tooth of lion" thou art not;
Is thy name's name forgot!
Flower that violet-slippered Spring
For her later days doth bring.

With thy spreading yellow hair,
Thou to me art wondrous fair.
Come and in my bosom rest,
Will rewarding, thus, my quest.
'Mid the blue and golden things,
Spreading forth their leaves, like wings,
Where the meadow, robed in green,
Where the river's radiance keen,
Join to grace the vernal scene.

Thou to me art wondrous dear—
Robin, nay! you shall not hear
The beloved, sacred name—
Through the rolling years the same—
That I always whisper low,
When the dandelions blow;
Always speak it tenderly
To the first one picked by me.

For its glory brings again
Brightly back the fading days;
And from out its heart I see
Blue eyes—unforgotten—gaze;
As its soft bloom sweeps my cheek,
I can hear their owner speak,
As he spoke in other days,
With a gentle, native grace;
I can see his earnest face,
As he said, "I do not change.
"So there, eternally;
"So, eternally, will I,
"Though through all the world you range."

Golden Robin, is that you
Crying over me, "'Tis true!
'True! true! true! true!
'True, him, trust him, he is true'"

Dandelion! haunted flower,
Well I understand thy power—
Tears? nay, who could weep with thee?
Flower of beauty, smiles and glee—
Hush, then, sighs; be dry, ye tears;
Sweetly sing the coming years,
Golden bells of prophecy,
Answering, laughing flower, to thee—

"Good days' glad days! yet to come!
"Where the flowers immortal bloom!"

Sparrow's Nest, May, 1882.

A STRANGE STORY.

TOLD BY A LINCOLNSHIRE CLERGYMAN.

Our astonishment was intense. How had it come there? It could not have been long in this place of concealment, or the church cleaners would have seen it before now.

"Perhaps it wor rats," said Cripps, "as tore it."

"But how came it all crumpled up and stumble 12" asked the sexton.

"It's my opinion there's been dirty work" suggested Mrs. Dumps, with the natural sweetness of her sex at jumping at charitable conclusions. "People as shall be unbeknamed by me, who lets a pore woman open and clean their pew for nigh twenty years without giving her a single 'all-crown at Christmas time, is capable of anythink!"

Indeed it was my opinion also. It did look like foul play. And I thought on the mysterious visitor to the church that evening I was there for the marriage extract, and the opening and shutting of the Scruby's pew door. But I kept my thoughts to myself.

"It ain't much consequence whether there's a will or no, now," said the sexton; "for Mr. Seth has every thing, and his pore sister's dead and gone long long ago. It was thought a queer thing at that time that there wasn't a will; for old servants as had lived with him many a year, and done their duty faithful, were not provided for; and old Jacobs, as had been the shepherd forty odd year, died in the Union—he did."

These items were entirely new to me, and confirmed my opinion of Mr. Scruby being a hard man, if not something worse.

Leaving strict orders to Cripps to finish his carpentering as quickly as possible, I hastened to the stable, ordered the dog-cart to be got ready immediately, packed a few necessaries in my carpet-bag, and then spreading out the tumbled sheets of my treasure-trove on the table, made myself master of their contents. As far as I could judge this was a regular will, drawn up by a solicitor at Boston, unfortunately long since dead. It enumerated much property, in lands, farms, and stock. The upper farm at Lincoln and some smaller ones in the north of the county, with their stock and product, were left to his only son, Seth. Coryton Farm, stock, implements, with the land in this parish and half the sum in the funds, were left to his dearly beloved and only daughter Jane and her heirs forever, after having paid legacies to several distant connections and servants, and subject to many annuities to old servants; and I saw mentioned, with much sadness, an annuity to be paid quarterly to the poor old shepherd Jacobs, of whom the sexton had so recently spoken.

Another surprise awaited me at the end of the bequests, for after the signature of John Scruby one of the witnesses' signatures was Thomas Kirby—the same handwriting I had seen in the register as witness to the marriage of the parents of Phœbe Meadows—the old woman Kirby's husband. It must, yes, it must be the genuine will—that which never was found.

CHAPTER III.

It was dark when I drove up to Mr. Pullingtoft's door; but as I descended from the dog-cart and came within the range of light with which he had hastened to greet his visitor, it was with the exclamation of "Bless my heart!" and a hearty shake of the hand, that he recognized and welcomed me.

After most hospitable entertainment Mrs. Pullingtoft discreetly withdrew; my host heaped up the fire, and drawing our chairs closer in, I unfolded the tale of my memorable sight's adventure to the good man, who listened with open mouth and open eyes; but when I came to the events of a few hours ago, namely, the finding of the will, who can describe his astonishment and delight? I opened and smoothed out the crumpled pages on the table, the farmer reading it attentively word by word; he had been familiar with old Scruby's signature, and, firmly declaring the will to be genuine, bestowed an unlimited number of choice epithets on the son. In vain I tried to convince him that a man may not be called bad until he be proven so. Mr. Pullingtoft emphatically declared Seth Scruby to be a knave. "And, not only that, sir, but a villain!"—with a slap of his fist on the table that made the glasses dance and jingle.

Of course I stayed all night; and during the evening I had again to relate my experiences in the church on the night of the farmer's first visit to me, with the slamming to of what I took to be Scruby's pew door—the seeing it shut and afterward open—and the banging of the church door as after some one who had just gone out; and to this narrative my host listened with renewed attention.

"It may have been Scruby himself," he cried, excitedly. "It was Tuesday se'nnight as I visited you on, and it was on that very day Scruby and his family arrived at Coryton Farm. He must have heard that I was thinkking of doing something to get back for Phœbe what was her mother's, and taken this means of putting the will out of sight till the storm should blow over."

I could not, however, agree with this view of the matter. Had Mr. Scruby wished to hide the will, he would not have stuck it in at the back of an ornament on the church reading-desk, where the first pew cleaner who came along to dust the desk could not have failed to see it.

On the following morning, after having carefully pasted together the pieces of the will, we drove over to Grantham to see Mr. Shaw, the solicitor, and have his opinion of the document that had come so strangely into my possession.

It was resolved that we should all three start for Coryton early next morning; and as I had a decided objection to entering Mr. Scruby's house a second time, it was arranged that Mr. Scruby should be summoned to the vicarage, to meet Mr. Shaw, of Grantham, on particular business.

It was about noon next day when, on arriving at Coryton, we despatched a messenger to the Farm. Fortunately, Mr. Scruby was at home; and he very promptly made his appearance, actuated, no doubt, by curiosity as to what the business could be, and with a lurking suspicion, probably, that it again concerned Phœbe Meadows. If so, he was right in his forebodings. What awaited him in reality, he little guessed. He entered my study with his face all puckered and plinched into a set hardness; and his shrewd eye glanced inquiringly at our faces as we politely made our salutations. Mr. Shaw plunged into the heart of the business by suddenly laying the will open before him on the table, simply saying: "Do you recognize this document, Mr. Scruby?"

Never shall I forget the expression of the man's face, as his eyes fell on those faded sheets of paper! To our watchful eyes it was sufficient confirmation of his guilt. We saw that he recognized it. Horror, fear, dismay, succeeded each other over a leaden-colored countenance. The struggle was dreadful to witness; and yet the man's habitual self-command was so great that in less time than it takes to relate this he actually composed his features to their ordinary grimness, and boldly and firmly replied, "No."

"I must beg of you to examine it with attention and care, Mr. Scruby," said our lawyer, never taking his speculative eyes from his face, "and give us your opinion upon it; for we firmly believe it is the will of your late father."

"My father left no will," said Mr. Scruby, fiercely; "and I refuse to read this forgery, for such it is."

"Take care what you say, Mr. Scruby. I affirm it to be a perfectly legal document, drawn up by my old friend, the late Mr. Collyer, the well known solicitor of Boston, with whose handwriting you must be well acquainted, seeing he managed your father's business for so many years. I beg you to examine it."

"I deny the existence of a will altogether," said Mr. Scruby; but as he said the words, I remarked that his hand, which rested on the table, trembled, in spite of his efforts to appear calm.

"Sir!" continued Mr. Shaw, "here is your father's signature, and those of the witnesses—namely, Thomas Kirby and Mary Greenwood."

"Thomas Kirby, indeed!" cried Mr. Scruby, scornfully; "a paltry farm-bailiff that I had to turn away for drunkenness; and Mary Greenwood, a half-blind, half-deaf, old housekeeper, who died crazy. Pretty witnesses you have brought forward, truly!"

"Doubtless, they were the only available ones at the time."

"It is a deep-laid conspiracy," he cried, furiously, as he moved toward the door. "I see through it all. I deny your statements. Go to law if you like, and I'll fight you inch by inch!" And seizing his hat, Mr. Scruby strode from the room, casting on us a withering look of contempt, expressing that he had unmasked a set of rogues, and fathomed their plot.

"Let him go to law," exclaimed Mr. Shaw, rubbing his hands with satisfaction; "I desire nothing better. And now, my dear sir, as time flies, may I ask you to introduce the witnesses one by one, if they are here yet, that I may take down their depositions. I hope you have summoned the old woman Kirby as well; I must have a talk with her before I go."

"I have sent for her," I said; "she must be here by this time."

The schoolmaster was the first to enter the room; and he gave a clear account of meeting me accidentally in the churchyard, accompanying me into the church, and the subsequent finding of the will. The sexton, carpenter, and Mrs. Dumps followed one by one, and corroborated each other's test mony in every respect. During this time old Mrs. Kirby had been thawing at the kitchen fire. I therefore hoped she would prove more communicative on this occasion than I had previously found her.

Mr. Shaw had his own way of opening his campaigns; and I perceived it was his tactics to come down suddenly or people, to open fire in an unexpected manner, taking them by surprise; by whichmeans he gave no time to invent answers and very often lighted upon the truth at once. He commenced with the old woman exactly in the same way as with Mr. Scruby, by placing the paper bearing the signatures open before her on the table; and, laying his finger below that of her husband, asked her if she knew that writing. Mrs. Kirby, putting on her spectacles, peered into the writing, and I saw the old withered hand that leant on the table, tremble. She gave a quick look over the top of her glasses at the lawyer and murmured in a low, anxious voice: "Then, it's found at last!"

She and Mr. Shaw looked straight at each other in silence—a silence that was significant; for from that moment they arrived at a very clear understanding without the aid of words. Then the old woman sank back in the armchair I placed for her, and the poor wrinkled hands shook perceptibly.

"You recognize your husband's signature then, Mrs. Kirby; and unless I am much mistaken, seem to be aware to what document it is attached?"

"I do—I do!" replied the old woman, to the lawyer's question. "And if you only knew—if you only knew what I and he who's gone, suffered along of that will—for I know it is the loss will—it broke my poor old man's heart; and mine, sir—and mine!"

The icy barrier that had surrounded his woman for so many years was disappearing. For once she shed tears. I offered her some wine, which she rejected.

"Wait till I've told my story all through," said she, "and then maybe I shall be glad enough of it. You must know," she began, addressing Mr. Shaw, "that I was not always the poverty-stricken woman I now am. I was in my younger days as comfortable as I could wish to be. My husband was farm-bailiff to old Mr. Scruby, and that nice house at North End was our home. Mr. Scruby had been a second cousin of my husband; and though he'd run through making money like dirt, yet he wasn't a bad-hearted man, though awful passionate; and having an old friendship for my husband, he sent for him and offered him the place. And many and many a year we lived on good terms—till his death, I may say. Well, sir, as you know, the old gentleman had only two children—this man Seth and the daughter—poor Jane. He brought her up quite a lady—in silk gowns and a gold chain round her neck. He loved her like the core of his heart; for she was so pretty, so affectionate, but wilful and spoilt-like; and at last he saw he must send her to school; for the poor girl had no mother, sir, and ran rather wild at home; and it was quite time she went, for she was twelve years old. So she was sent to Lincoln; and came home three or four times a year for holidays; and every time she was improved, and was growing prettier and prettier.

"Soon after she first went her father had a bad attack of gout, so bad that he set about making his will. One day, when my husband came home, he told me that he had been over to Boston to bring Mr. Collyer, for the old gentleman was making his will. Now, Mr. Scruby thought much of my husband, and was more confidential with him than anybody; and, after the will had been signed, he told him he'd left all his property in the parish and half the bank money to Jane; and she'd be one of the richest girls in these parts; and that my old man had been a witness to the will as was also old Mrs. Greenwood, who'd been his housekeeper many a year—aye, ever since the death of poor Jane's mother. Bad luck it was that those two were the only two handy at that time; for you see they're both dead! Well, sir, I didn't only hear this from my husband, but from Mr. Scruby himself; for one Sunday afternoon, when the old gentleman was meddling, I went to sit with him, while Mrs. Greenwood went to church. He was always chatty and friendly to me; and after we'd talked of his illness, and what mercy it was he hadn't been taken, we talked of his daughter; and then he gave me the key of an old bureau that was in his room, and told me to open it, look in one of the pigeon holes, and bring him a roll of paper, tied with a red string. And I did; and he read me what he had left Jane, for she was ever uppermost in his mind; then he said: 'Collyer said that it was not law to leave witnesses any legacy;' but he hoped he'd done as well; and pointing with his finger he made me read that he had set down for his son Seth to keep my husband for his farm bailiff for life; and to keep Mrs. Greenwood also, to provide for her. And I read those words, gentlemen, in that very will!"

(It was true—words to that effect were there.)

"Well, sirs," continued the old dame, "that made my life seem happier still, for we were provided for for life. For other six years all went well, and then troubles began. Jane had a lover, a handsome young fellow she had met and danced with at some parties at Lincoln—the son of a farmer near Spalding, who was a cousin of my own. Mr. Scruby did not like the notion of his daughter marrying at all so young; but at that time he hadn't any particular dislike to Edward Meadows, though he would not hear of an engagement. But, sad to tell, my cousin was burned out one night in winter—his farm, his stock, all burned to the ground; and he wasn't insured; for he was an obstinate man, and old fashioned in his notions; and when folks had told him he was tempting Providence not to insure his stock at least, would cry: 'How can any fire happen here, with all this water and all these ponds close to the house? Why, we should put it out in no time.' But the fire did come—in weather like this, when all the ponds were frozen—and he was ruined. He had some money left in the Boston Bank, and with this he tried to start again in a small way; but the old man had no heart left, so of course he failed, and was soon a bankrupt; and then he broke down altogether, and died.

"Well, sir, after that Mr. Scruby would not allow his daughter to think of young Meadows at all; and indeed he was no match for her; and my husband and I thought so, too, although he was a relative of our own; and we would not let him stay long in our house when he came over to see us, and did everything we could not to encourage these two foolish young people; for we were under obligations of much kindness to Mr. Scruby, and would not run contrary to him; and it would be a shabby return, knowing how his money was left, to make up a match between a rich girl and our penniless relation. But in spite of all, Jane was headstrong. It was generous of her, too, poor girl. She declared that she had loved Edward in his prosperous days, and refused to break off with him when he was in adversity. I think, perhaps, if these young people had waited it might have come about in a few years; for her father loved her too well not to have given in at last. But, gentlemen, they did not wait: for as soon as she was twenty-one, when old Mr. Scruby had gone to London on business, Edward Meadows got a license, and they came one morning to this church to be married. Mr. Willock was the vicar, and though very much put out at having to marry them, he couldn't refuse to perform the ceremony; and yet, when he saw nobody with them, was sure it must be a wrong thing. So he sent post-haste for us, sir—my husband and I—to come immediately to the church; for we were relations of the bridegroom, and so would be respectable witnesses. You might have knocked me down with a feather when we came to the church and found these two young people standing there, quite thoughtless of the wrong they were doing. We all begged and implored them to think of Mr. Scruby; but Jane declared her father would forgive them when it was done and they were once married—and seemed to have no fear; so there was no help for it; and with heavy hearts my husband and I saw the ceremony, and signed our names as witnesses—signed our death warrants, as I may say. We were dreadfully frightened at the part we had played, and my husband thought it best to start directly for London, and tell the bad news to Mr. Scruby himself. The rage and sorrow of the old gentleman was awful. He tore down here like a madman, and went on like a madman, and turned Jane out of doors when she came to ask forgiveness, vowing he would never see her again. He never did.

"He blamed us, and blamed Mr. Willock, more than he'd a right to; for how could we help ourselves? However, we were all very sorry for him, poor man, but thought he'd soften after a time to his only daughter; and so, I think, he would, only his son was furious against his sister, and the match she'd made; and against us, who, he declared, had connived at it, and brought it about. We expected to be turned away; but o d Mr. Scruby was, you see, a just man at the bottom of his nature, and, though never friendly-like with us again, did not take away our livelihood. But it did not last long. In less than two years Mr. Scruby was dead; and we heard that his son came into everything, as his daughter had been disinherited. It was the talk of everybody that no will had been produced. Mr. Collyer had died a week before Mr. Scruby; and my husband and I had notice to quit North End Cottage, Mr. Seth saying my husband was always tipsy, and he would not have an intemperate man for his farm-bailiff, though his father had put up with him so many years. And so—and so, we had to begin the world over again. In vain we told him how we had witnessed a will, in which Jane was left a mint of money, and we were provided for. No; it was no use. No will whatever had been found, he said; he was confident his father had destroyed it when his sister so wickedly married. 'Much good you and your husband got by it, when you got up that match,' said he with a sneer.

"Mr. Seth was not married then, yet he turned away old Mrs. Greenwood, to make room for a malapert hussy who was hardly thought good enough to milk cows in his father's time. Poor Mrs. Greenwood went to live with some relations, where she soon afterward died. She could not not bear to think of her place being filled by Madge Ralston—sister of old Miles who lives in the cottage at the pond. A bad un she always was, that Madge, as we and many others know to our cost. Not long after this Seth married his first wife, who got a good word from every one who knew her, and would have been kind to us old folk had Seth allowed her.

"But I must go on with my story. After we were turned out my husband got work, first in one part of the country, then another; but he never held up his head again, and we sank lower and lower. At last we came back to this village, as he was best known here, and had a lease of that poor little place of two rooms that I live in now. There he died. And there I received Edward Meadows, when wasting with consumption, and poor dear Phœbe, his helpless child."

"And what had become of Jane, then?" asked Mr. Shaw.

"Oh, sir, she went to her grave five months after her father, broken-hearted. Poor Edward Meadows had worked for her dear; but he got ill, and broke down at last. He had turned his hand to anything that came in his way. First, he broke horses and went to cattle fairs for the farmers; then he took to keeping accounts for the shopkeepers at Northampton. But Jane's death finished him, and he came to me as his nearest relation, begging me to bring up his poor little child. And there, sirs, is all—you have the complete history of a ruined family, if ever there was one."

"And what did you imagine had become of the will that old Mr. Scruby showed you?"

"I thought his son destroyed it. Yes, gent emen, I thought ill enough of Seth for that—heaven forgive me for wronging him! Seeing it is in your hands convinces me how bad I have been. But were did this will come from? Who had it all the time?"

"It was found hidden away," I replied. "Who hid it we do not yet pretend to say."

"It was only natural I should think Seth destroyed it," said the old woman, "for oh! he is a hard man, never to inquire how his sister died or about her little child. You have often asked me why I did not come oftener to church"—turning to me—"but it did me no good—no good! I saw that cruel man prosperous, praying; and the child poor, barely clothed, and only the care a poor old creature like me could give her; and it made me angry instead of humble; and I said to myself, instead of praying: 'Why does not a judgment overtake that man? Why does he flourish?' And so my heart would keep on burning within me."

This was the account given by the old woman. Its truthfulness was apparent, and her version of some of the contents of the will exact; and Mr. Shaw and I were more than ever convinced that there had been foul play on the part of some one.

Messrs. Wood, Bishop & Co.,

Gentlemen:—Please forward the Ranges due us on our last order, at once. We need them very much. We are having splendid success in selling the New Clarion, and as we have sold almost all the so-called first class Ranges in this market, and are selling this, as we do, in competition with all other Ranges, to our best city customers, we think you should feel highly gratified at having produced so perfect an article as the New Clarion Cooking Range.

We know it has more valuable points than any other made or sold in this city.

Respectfully yours,

TO THE TRAVELING PUBLIC.

AMERICAN HOUSE,

Corner Central and Harlow Streets,

BANGOR, MAINE.

Having formed a copartnership with W. M. Thayer, lately of the Penobscot Exchange, for a term of years, we cordially invite the former patrons of the Franklin House and also the Penobscot Exchange while under the administration of Smith & Thayer, and also the older patrons before, to our new alliance,

"THE AMERICAN."

Believing that it is not for the welfare of our city that a corner should be made in the Hotel business, therefore we shall try and gain by the traveling fraternity that it is for their interest as well as ours, that no such corner should be made. The American, under its new management, will be refurnished, repainted and improved in every department, and if long hotel experience, personal attention, a good table, second to none in Bangor, good and reliable waiters, clean rooms and beds, good stabling for horses, prompt hostlers, and last but not least, one of the most obliging Clerks in Maine, is any guarantee, we invite you once more to come to the American. We shall run five hacks and coaches to and from all trains and steamers arriving and leaving Bangor, to the "American." Please not forget it. Transient rates, $2.00 per day. Liberal discount by the week.

Stone In the Kidney Expelled After Using Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy" About two Weeks.

One of the most remarkable cases that has ever been brought to the notice of the public is that of Mr. J. S. Beach, of Stone Bridge, Ulster Co., N. Y. Mr. Beach had suffered since October 16th, 1874, from the presence of Calculus or Stone in the right Kidney. No less than seven physicians were employed at different times, to whom Mr. Beach paid hundreds of dollars for medical treatment, with only temporary relief from his agony.

By the urgent solicitations of his friends he was induced to try Dr. David Kennedy's "Favorite Remedy"—experienced a marked improvement from the first day he began to use the medicine; on the 15th of September he voided a stone as large as could be passed through the natural channel.

Mr. Beach concludes a long letter to Dr. Kennedy by saying: "It will always afford me pleasure to recommend the "Favorite Remedy" to those who may be suffering from difficulties of the Kidneys and Bladder, or any disorders arising from an impure state of the blood. The "Favorite Remedy" sold by all druggists. The Doctor's only address is Rondout, New York.
